V. Reasoned statement under Article 35(2) with regard to novelty, inventive step or industrial applicability; citations and explanations supporting such statement

1. Statement

Novelty (N)	Yes:	Claims	1-31
	No:	Claims
Inventive step (IS)	Yes:	Claims	1-31
	No:	Claims
Industrial applicability (IA)	Yes:	Claims	1-31
	No:	Claims

2. Citations and explanations

see separate sheet

VIII. Certain observations on the international application

The following observations on the clarity of the claims, description, and drawings or on the question whether the claims are fully supported by the description, are made:

see separate sheet

Reference is made to the following documents:

D1: US-A-3 214 003
D2: WO 97 36523 A
D3: EP-A-0 575 109
D4: US-A-5 414 974

V. Reasoned statement

1. The subject-matter of claim 1 meets the requirements of Article 33(2)+(3) PCT in respect to novelty and inventive step.
 - 1.1 The document D3 discloses an apparatus according to the preamble of claim 1 for dispatching trays of sorted mail to dispatch cages 34 (movable containers) each associated with spurs of a sorting and caging station 33 (see D3, figure 1, column 7, lines 19-25 and column 5, lines 47-53).
 - 1.2 The subject-matter of claim 1 differs from D3 by providing a transporting mechanism in order to convey the containers from the spur to the associated movable cart.
 - 1.3 The technical problem can be seen in the need to lock out the entire system in order to replace a full cart (see page 2, 4. paragraph and page 3, 2. paragraph) and herewith reducing the system throughput.
 - 1.4 The apparatus disclosed in D3 comprises an integrated sortation and caging station 33. The other documents cited in the search report do not contain the teaching to separate the following two steps, namely sortation of randomly arranged containers of sorted mail to spurs and transport of the containers to the associated cart.

The cartridge transfer and handling robot 30 of D2 moves mail cartridges 25 between a buffer shelf 40, a docking station 55 and the output compartments 20 of a sorter 15 (see D2 figure 1 and page 40, lines 20-24). The output compartments 20 are similar to the spurs and the buffer shelf 40 is seen as being equivalent to the carts. The only function of the buffer shelf 40 disclosed is to temporarily receive cartridges 25 (see D2 page 18, line 5) without there being any relation between the output compartments 20 and distinct compartments of the buffer shelf 40. It seems that at the end of the sortation the buffer shelf 40 contains cartridges 25 of sorted mail (see D2 page 40, lines 23) and the buffer shelves 40 need to be replaced requiring a stop of the robot 30. Therefore the disclosure of D2 is seen as being a transport mechanism for generally transporting containers of sorted mail. D2 does not contain a teaching that would lead the man skilled in the art to insert the transport mechanism of D2 between the spurs and their associated carts of D3 to increase the throughput of the dispatch system.

The document D1 does not disclose any cart. Therefore it can not provide a teaching to insert a transport mechanism between the spur and its associated cart of D3.

In the document D4 the transport conveyor 238 is seen as spur with its associated cart 94 (see D4, figure 8 and column 14, lines 18-30). Therefore no further transport mechanism is disclosed which could provide a relevant teaching.

2. Claims 2-25 are preferred embodiments of claim 1 and meet as such the requirements of the PCT with respect to novelty and inventive step.

3. The subject-matter of claim 26 is new and inventive according to Article 33(2)+(3) PCT.

3.1 The document D3 discloses a method where randomly ordered containers of sorted mail (see D3 column 4, lines 49-50) are sorted to associated hand-operated carts (see D3 column 7, lines 20-25).

3.2 The subject-matter of claim 26 differs from D3 in the intermediate step of first sorting the containers to particular locations and then automatically transporting the containers to the associated cart.

3.3 For a detailed argumentation reference is made to points 1.3 and 1.4.

The document D1 does provide a particular location (see D1, figure 8, elements 30-33) but does not disclose any cart. Therefore no hint is given to insert the method step of first sorting to a particular location according to D1 in the method of D3. D2 and D4 do not disclose a suitable particular location according to the present invention.

4. Claims 27-31 are preferred embodiments of claim 26 and meet as such the requirements of the PCT with respect to novelty and inventive step.

VIII. Certain observations

The term "one of this carts (52)" in claim 1 is in contradiction to Article 6 PCT as it is unclear from the wording whether it is one single cart or a plurality of carts which are juxtaposed with each spur. In the description nothing else than one single cart being juxtaposed with each spur is disclosed (see page 6, 2. paragraph "the associated cart 52").
